Every day, we are bombarded with visuals before we even get out of bed. Perhaps you wake up and immediately grab your phone to begin doomscrolling. Maybe you start streaming the latest episode of "Outer Banks." If you are like me, then you go online to catch up on the news and to view photo stories. No matter what content you are consuming, the visuals that we see can shape our perceptions of the world. In this class, you will learn why visual communication matters. You'll master the basics of photography, color, typography and the principles of design. You'll also create a visually engaging and newsworthy video. Better yet, you'll leave the class knowing to avoid Comic Sans.

Course purpose

The objective of this course is to inspire you to create compelling visuals. You will be introduced to the basics of multimedia journalism. During this course, you will have the opportunity to learn journalism skills in audio, photography, video and design. The course will provide an overview of the basic principles of these four areas. You will also explore the software in the Adobe Creative Cloud that allows you to create visual projects. You will learn to collaborate with others as you work on your final video project in a team. By the end of this course you, should be comfortable in your use of visual journalism terminology. You will learn why visuals are an important element to stories.

Required Software and Materials

- You are not required to purchase a textbook for this course. I will provide the weekly readings on Canvas.
- You must purchase the Adobe Creative Cloud in order to complete the assignments. You can buy a six-month or 12-month subscription. You can learn more here: <https://software.ufl.edu/adobe-offering/>
- The Associated Press Stylebook, updated annually. It can be purchased as a book, a subscription website or an app for the iPhone and iPad. The punctuation guide at the end of the book is especially helpful. (Recommended - not required)

Computer equipment

Because this course is an online course, you must have a computer that has internet access. You also need a webcam and microphone. Your computer should also have enough memory to be able to run the Adobe Creative Cloud programs.

You do not need a camera for this course as long as your phone includes a quality camera.

This is an synchronous online class, so that means that we meet LIVE every Monday. You should plan on being in a quiet place where you can participate in class. This is a three-hour course, but don't worry - I am not going to drone on and on and ignore you. I want the class to be as interactive as if we were in person, so be ready to have your cameras on so that you can participate fully.

The class will usually begin with a quick poll or participation question, and then we'll move on to talking about any important examples of visuals from that week's news. There will be a lecture every week, but I have plenty of examples where you can chime in with your critiques. We will take a 10-minute break after the first hour, and then we'll dive back in. You will be completing assignments, so we'll have time to view some of the best work. We will typically stay connected for the first two class hours, and then I will send you off in the final hour to complete a short assignment. The assignments range from answering a discussion post to practicing a skill in one of the Adobe Creative Cloud programs. My hope is that we'll have so much fun chatting about visuals that the time will fly by! You can help make this an interesting class by being prepared, adhering to deadlines and bringing your positive energy to our discussions. Pets are always welcome to make an appearance, too.

There will be times when I have so much content to share that we just won't be able to fit it all in. Some weeks, the live lectures will be supplemented with additional content provided on video lectures. As you learn each new software program, I will provide some video tutorials to help. That way, you'll have a resource that you can revisit as often as you want.

The course includes a mix of discussion posts, short assignments that allow you to practice the software as well as major assignments that allow you to focus on content. There will be a midterm exam. Instead of a final exam, you will turn in a final video project.

You are expected to read the announcements each Monday and to check into class several times a week to make sure that you don't miss anything.

Deadlines: Meet them

Consult the course schedule at the end of this syllabus for the due dates. These will also be listed in Canvas. All deadlines are firm because I want you to get into the mindset that in journalism, deadlines are important. If you miss a deadline, then you have 24 hours after the assignment's due date to turn it in. There will be a 10-point late penalty. After 24 hours, your assignment won't be accepted. Please work ahead to avoid last-minute issues that often arise. Reach out to me if you have an emergency that prevents you from meeting the deadlines so that I can help. Texting me for emergencies is fine.

Major Assignments

- Photo Story: You will find an interesting story that you will tell using photography. You will spend time with your subject and apply what you've learned about capturing strong images. You'll take many photographs but will have to narrow these down to the best five that work together to tell a narrative. Each photograph will need a caption, and you'll carefully consider the order of your images.
- Personality Design: You will learn about typography, color and photography and then put these three elements together to tell a story using your own words and a self-portrait. You will apply the principles of design as you create a two-page magazine design about yourself using InDesign. I have plenty of examples to share to help inspire you, so don't be intimidated.
- Audio: You will learn how multimedia stories use natural sound and interviews to communicate, and then you will get to practice this skill yourself. This assignment requires you to use Audition as your software to edit the audio. You'll work on a short piece that captures an aurally rich environment.
- Final Video Project: You won't have to tackle this major assignment alone. That's right — this is everyone's favorite type of assignment — a group project! I can feel your excitement! In this case, you have so many duties to tackle that you'll be glad to have your colleagues pitch in. You'll need to find a newsworthy story, write a script, add in narration, shoot the video, capture the audio and edit the final version. This video will be less than two minutes long, but you will spend hours on it. You'll need to have your story idea approved before you start, and you will fill out group evaluations to make sure that all group members contribute.

Short Assignments

These assignments are meant to introduce you to the software and allow you to practice your skills before the major assignments are due. These should take only about an hour to complete, but you can put more time into them if you want.

Photoshop: Make two photo illustrations

Photoshop: Create a gif

InDesign: Design an album cover

Audition: Create an intro for a podcast

Premiere: Experiment with a short video

Discussion Posts

- Introduce yourself: Tell us about yourself and share a visual that you appreciate. It can be a photograph, a painting, a video, etc. If you have a pet, include a separate photo of the animal, too.
- Typography scavenger hunt: Scan your surroundings and find examples of the six faces of type in the real world. Photograph these examples and share them on the discussion board.
- News story pitch: Offer your best ideas for the final project.
- Two critique posts: Show me what you've learned from the lectures and the readings by critiquing the examples I share.

UF Grading Policy

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/grades.aspx>

Class attendance

You will earn participation points for attending class and sharing your thoughts. I prefer that you turn your video cameras on so that I'm not staring at a bunch of black boxes. That's not a pleasing visual. There will be some virtual background theme weeks related to visual communication, so you don't have to show anyone your surroundings. Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at: <https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx>.

Accommodations

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (<https://disability.ufl.edu/>) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter that must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

Seek help if needed

College is stressful. This never-ending pandemic is incredibly stressful. Please take care of yourselves. You have counseling help available to you, and I hope you will use it if needed. Contact information for the Counseling and Wellness Center: <http://www.counseling.ufl.edu/cwc/Default.aspx>, 392-1575.

Honor code

When you enrolled at the University of Florida, you agreed to the following honor code:

"We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honesty and integrity."

On all work submitted for credit, the following pledge is either required or implied:

"On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment."

Review UF's academic honesty guidelines at:

<https://sccr.dso.ufl.edu/policies/student-honor-code-student-conduct-code/>

Cheating & plagiarism

While students are encouraged to study together, you can't take quizzes together. There have been instances of college cheating taking place over Group Me and text chats. Some people cheat by getting material from Quizlet, Course Hero and other online sites. None of this is allowed. Cheating is not tolerated, so please be honest. Do your own work.

Students are further expected to observe intellectual property rights and to comply with copyright laws. Also, you should not plagiarize the words, designs, concepts or ideas of others.

Plagiarism, whether intentional or accidental, has become easier to commit since the advent of the internet. Plagiarism is defined as "...taking someone's words or ideas as if they were your own." Source: Dictionary.com.

That means you cannot take even a single sentence from another Web site without attribution. It means you cannot take someone else's design and replace the words and pictures with your own. It means that if you use even a few of someone else's words verbatim, you must put quotation marks around them and cite the source.

Diversity statement

The University of Florida's College of Journalism and Communications Department of Journalism embraces a commitment toward an intellectual community enriched and enhanced by diversity along a number of dimensions, including race, ethnicity and national origins, gender and gender identity, sexuality, class and religion. We expect each of our journalism courses to foster an understanding of the diversity of peoples and cultures and of the significance and impact of mass communications in a global society.

I would like to create a learning environment for my students that supports a diversity of thoughts, perspectives and experiences, and honors your identities (including race, gender, class, sexuality, religion, ability, etc.) To help accomplish this:

- If you have a name and/or set of pronouns that differ from those that appear in your official records, please let me know.
- If you feel like your performance in the class is being impacted by your experiences outside of class, please don't hesitate to come and talk with me. I want to be a resource for you.
- If you prefer to speak with someone outside of the course, Joanna Hernandez, CJC director of inclusion and diversity, is an excellent resource. You can email her at jhernandez@jou.ufl.edu.
- If something was said in class (by anyone) that made you feel uncomfortable, please talk to me about it.

Course evaluations

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu>. I value your feedback, and I hope you will take the time to complete the evaluation form. I will let you know when it's available, but it's typically open during the last two weeks of the course.

Privacy: Online recordings

Our live class sessions may be recorded for students in the class to refer back and for enrolled students who are unable to attend. Students who participate with their camera engaged or use a profile image are agreeing to have their video or image recorded. If you are unwilling to consent to have your profile or video image recorded, be sure to keep your camera off and do not use a profile image. Likewise, students who unmute during class and participate orally are agreeing to have their voices recorded. If you are not willing to consent to have your voice recorded during class, you will need to keep your mute button activated and communicate exclusively using the "chat" feature, which allows students to type questions and comments live. The chat will not be recorded or shared. As in all courses, unauthorized recording and unauthorized sharing of recorded materials is prohibited.

The most frequent question that I get from students: "Do you offer extra credit?"

Yes! You will have the opportunity to meet up with other students from this class and paint the 34th Street Wall. I think this is a unique Gainesville activity that all Gator students should participate in. You should use the skills that you learned in class to capture a video of this or shoot a photo story. We'll chat more about the details in class.
