

HONORS GUIDELINES

Students who demonstrate superior scholarship and professional competence may receive special recognition by the College of Journalism and Communications. You may graduate with honors (cum laude), high honors (magna cum laude) or highest honors (summa cum laude). All students with a 3.5 GPA or higher for all upper-division classes and professional (courses taught by the College) work automatically will be graduated with HONORS. To graduate with HIGH HONORS, students must earn a 3.6 GPA or higher in all upper division and professional classes. To receive HIGHEST HONORS, students must earn a 3.8 GPA or higher for all upper-division and professional classes. Student conduct, in and out of the classroom, will provide additional evidence of professionalism. (Note: the GPAs are listed as follows on the degree audit – “Journalism Upper Division GPA” and “UF GPA in major courses.”)

To be considered for high or highest honors, students must apply by the deadline (see website for deadline each semester). Errors and/or omissions from students’ applications are grounds for denial of High/Highest Honors. Your application will be judged on whether you demonstrate professional competence.

Students in other programs at UF are required to submit theses for High/Highest Honors. You should treat the preparation and submission of your application as the equivalent of writing and submitting a thesis.

Your application must include:

- A. A one-page cover letter requesting the Student Evaluation Committee to consider your application. This should specify the level you are applying for (high or highest) and a detailed statement of your professional career goals.
- B. Your current degree audit showing your upper-division and professional GPA.
- C. Two copies of your “Statement of Professional Competence” detailing the materials you are submitting to document your professional competence. (See example on the next page.)
- D. Evidence of professionalism and professional competence. Given this college’s professional orientation, honors students are expected to work outside the classroom and provide samples of this work as evidence of their professional competence. This can include work completed at an internship. Since internships are expected, work from a single internship may not be sufficient for high/highest honors. It is your task to demonstrate your professional ability through the materials you submit with your application. The form of this evidence varies. Typically, students submit samples of work produced while completing internships or editorships, writing published in newspapers or magazines, published news releases, audio/video work that was aired and published research reports. Samples of professional work must include the materials produced. NOTE: (1) Submitting only professional work completed during your last semester will not be sufficient and (2) Applications that include class work only will not be approved.

If your professional work does not lend itself to submission to the committee, a letter that describes the nature of your work from an immediate supervisor must be submitted.

- E. A copy of your resume.
- F. A letter of nomination from a full-time faculty member in your department. (Graduate students and/or adjunct faculty are not “full-time faculty” members.) The faculty member will review your application materials (items I through IV) and professionalism. After determining that you have demonstrated professionalism and professional competence, the faculty member will complete the Letter of Nomination. Please use the attached form. (Handwritten nominations are acceptable.)

All application materials must be turned in by the deadline (see the College’s website for deadline each semester). Submit all materials to the PATH, 1060 Weimer Hall. Do not bind or staple your statement of professional competence. Students will be informed of their High/Highest Honors status when they pick up their application materials. Status and materials will be available in 1060 Weimer, the week of graduation. Materials not picked up will be discarded. If you want them mailed to you, please provide pre-addressed packaging and postage when you submit them.
