Description of the course

This course is designed to provide a thorough understanding and overview of the principles of scriptwriting, and to instruct students in how to apply these principles through practical applications involving commercials, corporate videos, documentaries, feature films, and television genres such as comedy and drama. The course will be comprised of lectures, readings, presentations, in-class and out-of-class exercises, screenings, analyses, and discussions.

Handouts
All materials are available on Sakai. No trees will be sacrificed!

*The final project, which will be presented and handed in at our final exam meeting on Wednesday, April 29, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. in Room 3020, will be either the beginning of an original screenplay or screenplay adaptation or a television drama/situation comedy.

Warning: Punctuality is most important in this industry. Late assignments will be penalized one letter grade per day. Students are expected to attend and participate in all classes. The only way to receive full credit for attendance is to have no unexcused absences. Note: There is no such thing as an excused absence to do something for another course. No incompletes will be given without a medical reason.

Readings

Readings are posted on the Sakai website. Several years ago I replaced a textbook (and test based on the textbook) with selected readings and an additional writing assignment. RTV3101 is, after all, a writing course. The good news was it saved students a considerable amount of money. The bad news was students for the most part ignored the selected readings. Feedback from previous classes suggested the remedy was to provide an incentive, so completion of the readings will count as much as five points toward your final grade. There are 12 readings, most of them quite short. To receive complete credit, you should e-mail me a short note (a paragraph or two will do) about each reading—what it was about and what you got from it. The e-mail is due on Wednesday following the week during which it was assigned. Readings 1 and 2, for example, are listed (assigned) for Thursday, January 9. Your e-mail about Readings 1 and 2 is therefore due Wednesday, January 15. Students who complete all 12 readings will receive 5 points. Fewer completed readings will result in fewer points.

University Honor Code

The University of Florida has a standardized code for instructors which states:

We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honesty and integrity.

As students, you have a commitment to academic honesty as well, and it is as follows:

I understand that the University of Florida expects its students to be honest in all of their academic work. I agree to adhere to this commitment to academic honesty and understand that my failure to comply with this commitment may result in disciplinary action, up to and including expulsion from the university.

There are six specific types of violations of the Academic Honesty Guidelines: cheating, plagiarism, bribery, misrepresentation, conspiracy and fabrication.
I hope you take this commitment to academic honesty and integrity seriously.

Course Evaluations

To ensure that you receive a grade as soon as possible after completing the course, please be sure to fill out the online course evaluation form.

Prerequisites

In order to take this course, you must have a grade of C or better in RTV 2100 and RTV 3000, and have junior standing in Telecommunication.
