DESCRIPTION

The importance of food is obvious: we eat food to stay alive and thrive. Sustenance is far from the only reason we eat, however, as shown in the course lessons—food writing, food in the media, food branding and marketing, food and place, and food entrepreneurship. In Food, Media, & Culture, we explore the purpose of food in our lives. Class readings mix media and cultural studies research with journalism, linguistics, gender studies, and psychology to help us see that foods like meatloaf, fried chicken, and apple pie are part of who we are.

Lectures, discussions, and pieces in a range of forms—magazine articles, academic arguments, book excerpts, videos, podcasts, and images—offer points of discussion and reflection. Not only do the pieces provide a variety of perspectives on food, they also represent a range of models for journalism and communication studies students.

This course develops students’ writing skills for a career in food and media. Students practice writing in a variety of food writing genres, including a cookbook review, restaurant review, interview, magazine pitch, food film analysis, essays, and a farmers’ market ethnographic study. Connecting food texts, identity, and writing will lead to the development of each student’s writing voice and sense of self-expression as defined by food.

OUTCOME/GOALS

At the conclusion of this course, students should be able to:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the origins, evolution, and issues of writing about food.
- Recognize and evaluate the social and cultural construction of food in the media, particularly as it relates to food production, representation, and consumption.
- Evaluate the cultural function of popular culture—including cookbooks, food labels, magazines, film, cooking shows, and images—in daily life.
- Present ideas and information appropriately for various audiences, resulting in the creation of polished written pieces.
