

Advanced News Center Practicum

JOU4202 | Fall 2022

Weekly team meeting in lieu of lecture: TBD

Digital production shifts: One digital desk shift per week, as assigned, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Innovation News Center (located on the second and third floors of Weimer Hall).

Instructor: Ethan Magoc

News Manager for Digital, Innovation News Center (INC)

University of Florida College of Journalism and Communications

Office: 2310 Weimer Hall

Office Hours: By appointment

Email: emagoc@wuft.org | Twitter: @EthanMagoc

The prerequisite for this course is JOU3101. There is no required text for this class.

Course Goals

This three-credit practicum is the next step beyond the essentials of digital news production.

Students in this practicum will learn:

- How to leverage advanced production methods, like SEO and A/B headline testing to maximize audience impact
- How to apply audience analytics and a cycle of creative experimentation to grow the WUFT news site and social media channels
- How to build and publish featured content through Wordpress, including using Block Builder and basic functions of HTML code for custom layouts
- How to supervise beginning digital producers to ensure their growth while maximizing team results

Course Overview

As advanced digital producers enrolled in JOU4202, you are leaders within the team. Set the tone for an exciting semester of original ideas and innovative thinking, much the same way your 4202 colleagues did for you when you first joined the newsroom.

Weekly meetings

Joint lecture: The UF registrar formally aligned this course with JOU4201's Monday lecture slot of 4:05 to 4:55 p.m., but your attendance at those sessions is optional because you completed them last semester. The exceptions are our two guest speakers on Oct. 10 and Nov. 14.

Digital strategy meetings: In lieu of a weekly lecture, we'll find a mutually agreeable one-hour block for a digital strategy meeting, during which the team will debrief on the previous week's website and social media content, analyze audience metrics and brainstorm new digital strategies to be implemented. You are expected to be well-versed in the website and social media analytics before class so that we can spend the hour discussing findings. This time will also serve as a space to workshop ideas and tackle hurdles you might be facing in your portfolio project.

WUFT Newsroom shifts

You will be expected to complete one digital production shift per week in the INC for the duration of the spring semester. Digital production shifts are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. We will assign shifts by the start of week two based on your availability.

I will be your supervisor for these shifts. This means that — unless I say otherwise — please do not press publish on any story until I've approved it. In the event of my absence, you may report to Denise Vickers for supervision.

WUFT is a professional newsroom. Your digital production shifts are an opportunity to apply what you've learned in an operating newsroom setting. Therefore, I expect you to treat this experience with the professionalism and seriousness that you would an internship. Depending on how you use your time this semester, you can walk away with a competitive portfolio for digital news production.

Past students in this course have been immediately hired upon graduation, in part, because of the effort they put forth to improve their skills and knowledge via this course.

Calendar

You can find the course calendar on Canvas. It will be updated with the official newsroom schedule and hard deadlines for your monthly logs and portfolio projects. I recommend treating this as a work schedule and downloading/ importing the information into whichever daily scheduling system you prefer.

You will find a daily rundown of audience analytics and story tips in our Slack #digitaldesk channel. Take a look at them as you start your shift.

Grading

35% monthly logs

- This is the main way I will assess your work this semester. Therefore, it is in your interest to treat your monthly logs as a comprehensive review of everything you accomplished during your digital production shifts. I will grade you on the quality of the work produced this semester and how well you used your time at the superdesk (e.g. when things were slow: did you look for stories to cover, engage our audience, work on your portfolio project, offer new ideas) as well as your thoughtfulness about how we — as a digital team — can do better. You can use the monthly log guide (on Canvas) as a general framework to track your web production from month to month.

- Logs are due at 11:59 p.m. on the last day of the month on Canvas (see assignments). I will deduct a letter grade for each day the log is late. I strongly recommend keeping a working document of “log-worthy” items to add to during your shifts to avoid having to track down everything at the end of the month. There will be a monthly log due for the months of September, October and November.

35% attendance, professionalism and communication

- I will treat you with the same respect and flexibility that’s offered to professional digital producers in an operating newsroom. With that said, I will assess you on attendance, professionalism and communication.
  - Attendance (50 points)
    - Were you on time for your digital production shifts and did you stay for the duration? If something prevented you from doing that, did you communicate with as much advance notice as possible? Were you focused on web producing for the entirety of your shift? Each unexcused absence will result in a 10-point deduction.
  - Professionalism (50 points)
    - If seeking to swap a shift with a co-producer, did you do so in a professional manner? When in the newsroom or representing WUFT over Zoom, did you dress and act professionally? The full dress code policy can be found on the newsroom intranet.
  - Communication (50 points)
    - Did you respond in a timely manner to all communications in Slack, Canvas and email? Were you actively engaged in the Slack thread(s) for daily workflow during your shift? Did you offer consistent support and guidance to the 4201s during digital shifts? Did you help set the tone and lead conversations in the #digitaldesk Slack? Overall, did you conduct yourself with an attitude, work ethic and communication style befitting of a supervising digital producer?

30% portfolio project

- You will develop one main idea from conception to execution over the course of the semester (see assignment in Canvas). The idea is to develop an innovation for our platform that you can show to a potential employer. Being able to show real results, reflected in analysis, stemming from your innovation will make you a competitive candidate in the job market for digital producers. I am very flexible on this, and I encourage you to focus on something that will retain your interest and energy throughout the spring semester. The only limit is that it must justifiably fit within the realm of digital production. I will work with you at the beginning of the semester to identify and refine what this idea looks like for you. Note: Your monthly logs will also serve as intermittent checkpoints on your project progress.

Information on UF's grading policies for assigning grade points can be found here.

The official university policy on attendance can be found here.

Technology and Communication

In this course, you are working as digital producers. During digital strategy meetings, you are encouraged to bring laptops/ mobile devices for hands-on workshopping of digital production. For your newsroom shifts, however, you will work on the desktop computers provided at the superdesk.

All assignments (monthly logs and final portfolio project) will be posted, submitted and graded through Canvas.

Our Slack channel #digitaldesk will be our day-to-day means of communication. This is your space. Take it up. Here you can expect:

- An early morning rundown from me (possible story ideas, most read stories from yesterday, and most clicked stories in the newsletter).
- A daily wrap-up from the producers on desk (what you accomplished, what's leftover for tomorrow, moments of genius, etc.).
- Breakout DMs for the producing crew on desk Monday - Friday to deal with the daily humdrum.
- Space to collaborate, brainstorm, share news and bounce ideas off each other.

My preferred mode of communication is via direct message on Slack, especially for news-related business. I will also be readily available in the newsroom during your digital production shifts.

Most details about how to function for WUFT – from finding stories to writing headlines — are on its intranet (<http://www.wuft.org/newsroom>). The username is newsroom and password is INCnewsr00m2021* (the O's in newsroom are zeros).

Diversity and Inclusion

The University of Florida's College of Journalism and Communications Department of Journalism embraces a commitment toward an intellectual community enriched and enhanced by diversity along a number of dimensions, including race, ethnicity and national origins, gender and gender identity, sexuality, class and religion. We expect each of our journalism courses to help foster an understanding of the diversity of peoples and cultures and of the significance and impact of mass communications in a global society.

You will do your best work as a journalist when you feel comfortable bringing your whole self to the table. Please let me know what I can do to make sure you feel respected and welcomed in this space.

- If you have a name and/or set of pronouns that differ from those that appear in your official records, please let me know.
- If you feel like your performance in the class is being impacted by your experiences outside of class, please don't hesitate to come and talk with me. I want to be a resource for you.
- If you prefer to speak with someone outside of the course, Joanna Hernandez and Ryan Vasquez, co-chairs of the CJC Inclusion, Diversity, Equity and Access committee are excellent resources. You can email them at jhernandez@jou.ufl.edu and rvasquez@wuft.org.
- If something was said in class (by anyone) that made you feel uncomfortable, please talk to me about it.

I am committed to creating an inclusive environment in which all students are respected and valued. I will not tolerate disrespectful language or behavior on the basis of age, ability, color/ethnicity/race, gender identity/expression, marital/parental status, military/veteran's status, national origin, political affiliation, religious/spiritual beliefs, sex, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status or other visible or non-visible differences.

Especially as a team of community storytellers, our differences will be one of our greatest strengths. I look forward to discovering those differences together and learning from each other.

Students With Disabilities

Reasonable accommodations will be made for students with disabilities and who have registered with the UF Dean of Students Office. This office will provide relative documentation to the student, who must then provide this documentation to the instructor when requesting accommodations.

Counseling Center

Personal or health issues such as depression, anxiety, stress, career uncertainty and or relationships can interfere with your ability to function as a student. UF's Counseling and Wellness Center (CWC) offers support for students in need. CWC is located at 3190 Radio Road and open each weekday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Academic Integrity

The College of Journalism and Communications is committed to upholding the university's academic honor code. Academic dishonesty of any kind shall not be tolerated in this course. The university's guidelines provide additional details, which each student is expected to understand. To be certain, academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to using any work done by another person and submitting it for a class assignment; submitting work done for another class; copying and pasting text written by another person without quotation marks and or without complete attribution, which usually includes a link to the original work; using images produced by someone else without explicit permission by the creator. Attribution is not the same as permission. Most images found online are not free to use.

Course Evaluations

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu>. Evaluations are typically open during the final weeks of the semester. Students will be given specific dates when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results>.
