DESCRIPTION

What do we eat and why? The concept of food includes not only what we eat but how food is perceived, chosen, produced, and consumed according to the complex interactions between individuals, communities, and cultures. Food depictions in the media offer a perspective of the changing principles revolving around the food experience. This course analyzes food culture through various media forms including print (cookbooks), video (cooking shows, food films, YouTube), images (advertisements), social media (Instagram), traditional media (newspapers), and physical products. These different texts explore how food involves much more than simply eating. Food represents not only a culture and society, but it also plays a key role in the construction of identity of self and relationships.

Lectures, discussions, and pieces in a range of forms—magazine articles, academic arguments, book excerpts, videos, podcasts, and images—offer points of discussion and reflection. Not only do the pieces provide a variety of perspectives on food, but they also represent a range of models for students specializing in journalism and communications.

This course develops students' writing skills for a career in food and media. Students practice writing in a variety of food writing genres, including a cookbook review, restaurant review, food magazine pitch, and a multimedia food and culture project. Through food, students will learn how culture and media influence their food habits and choices, and ultimately, make connections to their expression of identity.

OUTCOME/GOALS

After this course, students should be able to:

- demonstrate an understanding of the origins, evolution, and issues of writing about food,
- recognize and evaluate the social and cultural construction of food in the media, particularly as it relates to food production, representation, and consumption,
- evaluate the cultural function of popular culture—including cookbooks, food labels, magazines, films, cooking shows, and images—in daily life, and
- present ideas and information appropriately for various audiences, resulting in the creation of polished written pieces.

REQUIRED TEXTS

All readings and multimedia texts are available as PDFs or links on Canvas.

EMAIL & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Important information about the course is sent every week via email and announcements. As stated by UF, students are responsible for checking email and e-Learning for course communications at least once every 24 hours.

Discussion Posts

Participation is an integral part of success in this class. You are expected to ask questions, offer thoughtful comments, and contribute positive energy to the discussion.

Discussion Posts: Informal writing will be conducted throughout the course on Discussion Boards. The writing will be based on that week's theme and material, such as readings, podcasts, and video viewings. Your first post should be 150 to 300 words (or as indicated in the instructions), respond in full to the discussion prompt, and is due Thursday, 11:59pm EST. Return to the Discussion board to engage in dialogue with your classmates and give the required posts (1 or 2 posts as indicated), min 100 words, by Sunday, 11:59pm EST.

While you may respond to as many classmates as you'd like, one response post is required for each Discussion board, unless otherwise indicated. Remember that discussion posts should be substantive and contribute to the topic at hand.

In sum, Discussion posts:

- Your post, min 150-300 words (or as indicated), due Thurs, 11:59pm EST
- Your reply posts, min 100 words, 1 to 2 reply posts (as indicated), due Sun, 11:59pm EST

Mode of Submission

All papers will be submitted online as MS Word (.doc) documents. Final drafts should be polished and presented professionally. All papers must have a title, your name, and be in 11-point, Times New Roman, double-spaced, and 1-inch margins.

UF New York Times Free Subscription

You are encouraged to subscribe to The New York Times through UF's free online subscriptions. You'll be able to access class readings more easily and be able to stay current on food culture. To activate your subscription, go to myUFL and navigate to "Main Menu." From there, go to "Quick Links," then "NY Times" and click on "Subscribe now."

Late Policy

Attendance is required. Attendance consists of participating actively in Discussion Boards and submitting Assignments on time. If more than six Discussion Posts and/or Assignments are not submitted during the term, the student will fail the entire course. Each day a submission is late is an automatic 10% deduction. After 5 days, the assignment will receive a 0.

Exemptions from this policy include only those indicated per UF's Attendance Policy:

"Acceptable reasons for absence from or failure to engage in class include illness; Title IX-related situations; serious accidents or emergencies affecting the student, their roommates, or their family; special curricular requirements (e.g., judging trips, field trips, professional conferences); military obligation; severe weather conditions that prevent class participation; religious holidays; participation in official university activities (e.g., music performances, athletic competition, debate); and court-imposed legal obligations (e.g., jury duty or subpoena). Other reasons (e.g., a job interview or club activity) may be deemed acceptable if approved by the instructor." <https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx>.

Documentation must be submitted to instructors within 7 days of the event. Work must be made up no later than 7 days after the event.

Course Evaluations- GatorEvals

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction and material in this course by completing online evaluations through the email from GatorEvals, in the Canvas course menu under GatorEvals, or via ufl.bluer.com/ufl.

Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester.

Diversity Statement

We are committed to creating an inclusive environment in which all students are respected and valued. We will not tolerate disrespectful language or behavior on the basis of age, ability, color/ethnicity/race, gender identity/expression, marital/parental status, military/veteran's status, national origin, political affiliation, religious/spiritual beliefs, sex, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status or other visible or non-visible differences.

Please let us know ways to improve the effectiveness of the course for you personally, or for other students or student groups.

Asynchronous meeting

The class material is made available at the start of each week with assignments due at the end of the week. An email announcement is sent out with guidelines for that week's success.

The class does not meet in person or via live online sessions to allow for remote enrollment.
