*This syllabus is based on the syllabus for JOU 3110 created by Dr. Cory Armstrong.

Course Overview

This course is developed to introduce you to resources that help journalists report factual information, including standard reference materials, public records, and Internet resources. This course includes the development of skills that will a journalist may need to analyze data that is available to the public using Excel. Another component of your course deals with the interpretation and presentation of information. A large component of the course will also focus on the practical applications of these search techniques by good reporters and editors.

The course will cover all aspects needed for a thorough journalistic search, including:

- Immersing in Florida public records for major governmental agencies.
- Investigating available commercial and government databases, with an emphasis on the Internet and the World Wide Web.
- Manipulating newsworthy data, including the use of spreadsheets such as Excel.
- Evaluating information and critically examining data collected.
- Discussing broad information sources that will appear to specific audiences within a diverse society.

As such, lecture and discussion will be a necessary component to the course. However, the course also requires hands-on training, so the setup of the course will include both lectures and computer lab work, including online exercises.

Upon completion, student will be able to:

- Critique the quality of the news media based on gathered information.
- Demonstrate an ability to effectively access public records.
- Develop user-friendly ways to present information.
- Analyze basic datasets in Excel.

Technology in the classroom

You are encouraged to come to class with a laptop because you may be asked to participate in an activity, which requires a computer and online access. Since students are required to purchase a Mac, most exercises will be taught on a Mac computer. However, a student with a PC with Microsoft Excel will be able to complete all coursework.

The fact that you are expected to bring your computer to class does not mean that you should use class time to browse the internet, check e-mail or participate in any other activities that do not relate to the course. If your laptop use is disruptive, you may be asked not to use your privilege may be limited.

Further, I assume that all students check email and SAKAI regularly as part of the course.

Attendance

Course attendance is mandatory. Students are expected to show-up on-time for class meetings, as outlined in this syllabus. Students are responsible for making up any material missed due to absences. If you are absent for any acceptable reasons, a note from the Dean of Students Office will be requested. (<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/supportservices/>) According to the Registrar's Office at the University of Florida, an acceptable reason for an absence is outlined below:

“In general, acceptable reasons for absence from class include illness, serious family emergencies, special curricular requirements (e.g., judging trips, field trips, professional conferences), military obligation, severe weather conditions, religious holidays and participation in official university activities such as music performances, athletic competition or debate. Absences from class for court-imposed legal obligations (e.g., jury duty or subpoena) must be excused. Other reasons also may be approved.”

Class attendance will be taken regularly throughout the semester, using a five-question quiz given at the beginning of class based on the Secrets of the Scoop. Those quizzes will count toward your attendance grade, and the lowest score will be dropped at the end of the semester. It is your responsibility to obtain material missed in class.

Late Work

No late work will be accepted, without any exceptions. All assignments must be turned in at the beginning of class or earlier. Similarly, all readings are to be completed before the start of lecture on the day assigned.

Graded Exams

Exams must be taken during the time specified in the syllabus, unless you have an absence excused under university policy, outlined at the following link:

<https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx>

To review graded exams, please visit me during office hours. Removing exams from the classroom or my office may be considered cheating. Students who engage in such behavior will receive a zero on the exam, and may be reported as a violator of the code of academic integrity.

Make-ups

Make-up assignments and exams are not permitted. In emergency situations, an exception may be made if you have an excused absence and the professor was notified in advance.

Group Work

This course includes extensive work in groups. All group members are responsible for the content within the final project. Group members are encouraged to attempt to work out differences among members before alerting the professor. In extreme cases, various group members may receive differing grades on their group projects.

Extra Credit

Your professor may or may not provide students with an extra credit opportunity to participate in research activity. If an opportunity is available, students will be notified electronically.

Academic Integrity

All students are expected to abide by the University of Florida rules for academic integrity. It is your responsibility to ensure that you understand plagiarism. You may use the following tutorial to familiarize yourself with the definition of plagiarism:

<http://www.lib.usm.edu/legacy/plag/whatisplag.php>

Academic dishonesty will result in a zero on the assignment, and could lead to failure in the course. The professor will report any violations of the Honor Code to the Dean of Students Office, in accordance to the University of Florida policy.

Students with Disabilities

All students with disabilities will be accommodated, after the professor receives a letter from the Disability Resource Center (<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/>).

Cell Phones

Cell phones should be turned off at the start of class. Students should not be texting or using their cell phones in other ways during class. Cell phones may be confiscated should their use be distracting.

Classroom Behavior and Disruptions

Students are expected to be respectful of other students' right to hear and participate in classroom discussion. If you repeatedly disrupt classroom discussion, you may be asked to leave the classroom.

Any electronic communications with the professor are considered professional. Please make sure your electronic communication style is consistent with your professional goals. See: <https://www.linkedin.com/today/post/article/20121203004159-33236097-your-digital-body-language-don-t-ignore-it>

Especially respectful behavior is expected in the presence of guest lecturers. Several guest lecturers, who will share experience and knowledge for your benefit, will be expected over the course of the semester.
