Course Policies

Course Format. The format of the course is two 50-minute lectures and one 115- minute lab per week. It would be useful to think about this course as a theory and practice course. The lectures provide you with ideas about writing for the electronic media and provide examples that you can use as models for your own work. During lab session your lab instructor will help you put those ideas into practice. Your lab leader will help you develop your skills more closely and will grade your work.

Computers. We will be using PC computers. We will write and edit electronically using Microsoft® WORD. We will communicate by campus email. Please be sure you are familiar with basic operations of these programs.

Attendance. Attendance is required because it is essential to your learning. In general, acceptable reasons for absence from class include illness, serious family emergencies, special pre-approved extracurricular requirements (professional conferences or athletic events where you are a participant), military obligation, severe weather conditions, religious holidays, and court-imposed obligations (i.e. jury duty or subpoena).

We have about 30 lectures and 15 lab sessions for a total of 45 sessions. You will get THREE absences without penalty. For unexcused absences four through eight we will deduct one point from your final grade average for each lecture and lab missed. If you miss one-fourth of the sessions, 10 or more, you will earn an F for the course. In addition, work can only be made-up for excused absences, but current events quizzes cannot be made-up.

It is the responsibility of the student to keep up-to-date of all material, deadlines, and assignments missed, and will be his/her responsibility to meet all deadlines for assignments for ANY ABSENCE, excused or otherwise. If you miss a lab, it is your responsibility to arrange to make up the missed work with your lab instructor.

Your lab instructor will take attendance at the beginning of labs and lectures. It is your responsibility to be on time AND make sure you are recorded as present. If you come late to class and attendance is already noted, you will be considered absent. It is YOUR responsibility to be on time.

Courtesy. If you arrive late, settle in with the minimum amount of disturbance. TURN OFF YOUR CELL PHONE DURING CLASS, and NO TEXT MESSAGING, and NO FACEBOOK or TWITTER. If your instructors are not on their phone, then neither should you.

Learning. Learning is a lifelong process. Learning to write well involves continued exposure to good examples and a lot of practice. Students who are unduly concerned with grades usually play it safe and give the teacher what they think he or she wants. Real learning requires you to experiment and make mistakes. In this class when faced with a choice between playing it safe for a grade and experimenting, with the possibility that you will make a mistake you can learn from, dare to take that risk. Choose what will contribute to your long term learning, not what will enhance your semester grade. We will give you the space to make mistakes without being punished by a grade. Don't just think about giving the "right" answer, instead give the best answer.

Guidelines. Be sure to put your name on all quizzes and lab assignments. Also make sure you include your lab instructor's name on the mid-term and final exams as grades are kept by individual sections.

Incompletes. A course grade of incomplete will be permitted only for serious illness documented by a physician. A timetable for completing the course work must be set before the incomplete is given.

Flexibility. We believe the semester plan outlined in the calendar is realistic. Nonetheless, we reserve the right to adjust the course content, exercises, exams, etc., based on the class's collective ability to maintain pace.

Course Evaluation. Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course based on 10 criteria. These evaluations are conducted online at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu>

Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at <https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results>

The University of Florida Honor Code was voted on and passed by the Student Body in the Fall 1995 semester. The Honor Code reads as follows:

Preamble: In adopting this Honor Code, the students of the University of Florida recognize that academic honesty and integrity are fundamental values of the University community. Students who enroll at the University commit to holding themselves and their peers to the high standard of honor required by the Honor Code. Any individual who becomes aware of a violation of the Honor Code is bound by honor to take corrective action. A student-run Honor Court and faculty support are crucial to the success of the Honor Code. The quality of a University of Florida education is dependent upon the community acceptance and enforcement of the Honor Code.

The Honor Code: "We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honesty and integrity."

On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied:

"On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment."

Current Events quizzes (5%). People working in the mass media must know what's going on in their communities, in the country, and in the world. They must be in the daily habit of reading at least one newspaper and listening to the news on radio, television, or online. There should be at least one local source in your daily dose of news. Here are some of the media outlets available for this purpose:

- From print. The Gainesville Sun (Gainesvillesun.com). National newspaper websites like The New York Times, The Washington Post, or The Los Angeles Times. There are also weekly news magazines like TIME, Newsweek, U.S. News & World Report.
- From radio. WUFT weekdays.
- Network and local television news. Watch the news on WCJB, ABC, CBS, CNN, Fox, and NBC.
- From the Internet. Visit news web sites frequently to know what is going on in the world, and up-to-the-minute like cnn.com, foxnews.com, drudgereport.com, and huffingtonpost.com.

Lab exercises (50%). This grade is divided equally between news writing exercises (25%) and production writing exercises (25%). You are graded on journalistic style (precise, accurate and fair information), aural style (conversational, ear-pleasing), writing (clear, concise, compelling), effort (applying class ideas, originality/creativity, persuasiveness), and mechanics (punctuation, grammar, spelling, vocabulary).

Both the Mid Term and Final exams (40%). Your exams are based on material in the lectures and labs.

Meet and Greet (5%). You will write a short paper (400 to 600 words) explaining why you are taking RV2100, what you hope to get out of the class, what your future goals are in the industry, and ideas for internships. Your lab instructors will provide more information on this assignment concerning what they want to receive from you in your short paper. In addition, you will meet with your lab instructor and explain what you wrote in order to receive full credit.

Tips for doing well

Attend all lectures and labs. Lecture PowerPoints will not be available on Sakai which means you must be in attendance to learn the material from the lectures. The material from the lectures will be used to help you in your lab work, and the exam questions will come directly from the lecture.

If you miss a lab, you will need to email your lab instructor within 12 hours after the lab has finished. Your lab instructor will then provide you the assignment missed. You will have 48-hours to complete the missed lab assignment unless other arraignments have been made. This course moves quickly, and only by having you complete assignments quickly will your lab instructors know you are on pace to do well in the course.
