

DOCTORAL QUALIFYING EXAMINATION POLICY

UF COLLEGE OF JOURNALISM AND COMMUNICATIONS

04/21/2022

Introduction

The purpose of this document is to introduce students to the College of Journalism and Communications' doctoral qualifying examination and its procedures.

Purpose of Doctoral Qualifying Examination and Admission to Candidacy

The purpose of the qualifying exam is to test a student's knowledge of core competency areas. The exam evaluates each student's comprehensive understanding of the field, as well as the student's insight, creativity, and clarity of expression. The examination is one of the requirements for admission to candidacy.

A graduate student does not become a candidate for the Ph.D. degree until granted formal admission to candidacy. Such admission requires the approval of the student's supervisory committee, the Associate Dean for Graduate Studies, and the Dean of the Graduate School. The approval must be based on (1) the academic record of the student, (2) the opinion of the supervisory committee concerning overall fitness for candidacy, (3) an approved dissertation topic, and (4) a qualifying examination as described below.

Preparation for the Examination

The student must schedule an initial meeting with the entire committee prior to the semester of the qualifying exam. To provide the committee with adequate information for the development of appropriate written examination questions, each student should submit to the committee chair syllabi or course descriptions and paragraphs describing the parameters of the study area established for each question in consultation with the appropriate committee member(s). The course descriptions need to include required readings for each course taken during the coursework portion of the program. Students will be held responsible for the coursework they were required to complete as a prerequisite to the doctoral program. All of these materials – syllabi, course descriptions and paragraphs describing each question area – must be submitted to the chair no later than the beginning of the semester planned for the qualifying examination.

In addition to the paragraphs describing each question, the student must submit a reading list of current journals and journal articles, books, and other appropriate documents for each question, prepared in consultation with the individual committee members and chair. The reading list is meant to act as a study guide so that the student and the committee agree on necessary preparation.

The student also must submit a dissertation proposal, approved by the chair, to the supervisory committee no later than four months after completion of written qualifying exams. The proposal is composed of a completed draft of the first three chapters of the dissertation, including: the research problem, the paradigmatic and theoretical foundations for the project, the rationale for the project, key definitions and literature of the topic, a description of the methodology to be used (for example, survey research, experimentation, historical research, legal research), and a tentative bibliography, research schedule, and tentative budget. Students planning for the three-article dissertation option should consult with their chairs to determine proposal expectations.

Scheduling Qualifying Examinations

It is the student's responsibility to schedule times for the written and oral portions of the examination. In consultation with their supervisory committee chair, students must choose one of two options (in-person or remote) for the written exam before scheduling the exam. After agreement by the supervisory committee chair that the student may schedule the examination, the student simultaneously arranges the dates, times, and locations for both the written and oral portions of the qualifying examination and proposal.

Between the admission to candidacy and the graduation date of the degree, there must be a minimum of two semesters. The semester in which the qualifying examination is passed is counted, provided that the examination occurs before the midpoint of the term. For example, if a student plans to graduate in the spring term, the oral portion of the qualifying examination must be taken before the midpoint of the fall term. However, if the student plans to graduate in the summer term, the oral portion of the qualifying examination can be held after the midpoint of the fall term, but before mid-point of spring term.

All times and dates of the written and oral qualifying examinations will be announced to the members of the faculty graduate students. A copy of the written questions for every qualifying examination must be on file in the Division of Graduate Studies but are not for public inspection.

Nature of the Qualifying Examination

The University of Florida requires that the examination be both written and oral. In the College of Journalism and Communications, written and oral portions are considered as parts of one unified examination. Students must meet the university's registration requirements at the time they take the exam.

Students should register for MMC 7979 in the term in which they plan to take the qualifying examination. The Graduate School provides the official notice that the student has been admitted to candidacy.

Written Portion of the Examination

Answers to the written portion of the examination must be written. Oral examinations are forbidden as substitutes for any, or all, of the written portion.

The written portion of the examination is divided into four parts. The written portion of the examination focuses on the individual student's coursework and readings. There shall be one part each on (a) mass communication in general, (b) the specific aspects of mass communication on which the student focused, (c) research methods central to the study of those specific aspects of mass communication, and (d) supporting studies taken outside the college.

While there is no formal question regarding the dissertation proposal, the faculty will ask the student questions designed to increase the student's understanding of the dissertation topic or resolve outstanding issues in the proposal.

In addition, it is expected that the proposal (completed first three chapters) will be turned in prior to the exam.

Any foreign language examination requirement will be met outside of the qualifying examination.

In-person Option for Written Portion

- Students will be allowed four hours for each part. The four parts of the examination must be completed within ten official class days.
- Before beginning, students must sign the academic integrity agreement and accept the terms of the policy.
- Each student must answer qualifying exam questions from memory. No external aids of any kind (including electronic or written notes, books or references, external memory devices, cell phones or study aids of any kind) are allowed during the exam. Any exceptions must be approved by a petition to the Associate Dean of graduate studies one month prior to taking the qualifying exam. Only one automatic exception, which does not require a petition, will be made for the legal methodology question, which tests the student's ability to use the law library, legal research databases and occasionally the Internet. Resources must be approved by the student's committee.
- The answers must be written within Weimer Hall and produced in electronic form. The arrangements to sit for the written portion must be coordinated by the student in consultation with the supervisory committee chair and Division of Graduate Studies. The student is responsible for reserving with the Division for Graduate Studies a computer, room, and other supplies necessary for the examination.
- The chair of the committee will collect examination answers, plus one copy for each additional supervisory committee member at the conclusion of each of the four parts.

The supervisory committee chair also will deliver one set for the official records to the Division of Graduate Studies.

Remote Option for Written Portion

- Students will be allowed eight hours for each part. The four parts of the examination must be completed within ten official class days.
- Before beginning, students must sign and return the academic integrity agreement indicating acceptance of terms to their chair and gradstudies@jou.ufl.edu.
- The written exam will be open-book/open notes with no aid from other individuals or unauthorized sources.
- The supervisory committee chair will send the student each written question by email, at a specific time agreed upon in advance. The student will have eight hours to complete each question from the agreed-upon start time. Any exceptions must be approved by a petition to the Associate Dean of graduate studies prior to taking the qualifying exam.
- The chair of the committee will collect examination answers, plus one copy for each additional supervisory committee member at the conclusion of each of the four parts. The supervisory committee chair also will deliver one set for the official records to the Division of Graduate Studies.

Any violation of the above rules will result in immediate dismissal from the doctoral program.

Responsibility for Preparing Questions

The student's supervisory committee members, under the direction of the chair, are responsible for the development of the questions for the written portion of the qualifying examination in accordance with the policies of the university and the college. The supervisory committee prepares the examination questions within the context of the individual student's program.

Evaluation of Written Examination

Student responses are evaluated by the student's supervisory committee following the policies of the university and the college and within the context of the individual student's program.

There will be no separate faculty evaluation for the written portion of the examination. Rather, the committee will decide whether a student passes or fails the qualifying examination after the oral portion of the examination. The chair will discuss the results of the written portion of the examination with members of the supervisory committee and separately with the student prior to proceeding with the oral defense.

Oral Portion of the Examination

The oral portion of the examination should take place within one month of the student completing the written portion of the examination. The oral portion of the qualifying examination must be held on campus. A major purpose of the oral exam is to allow the student, in response to faculty, to answer questions that arose as a result of the written portion of the examination. The second purpose is to defend the dissertation proposal—Chapters 1-3, complete. The supervisory committee chair may meet with committee members before admitting the student to the oral portion of the examination, and a committee member may request such a meeting, which request shall be honored by the chair.

Evaluation of the Oral Examination

The student and the chair or co-chair are required to be in the same physical location. All other committee members, including the external, can participate via advanced communication technology. Only with advance notification and permission of the Associate Dean for Graduate Studies can a graduate faculty member substitute for another committee member. Justification for the substitution must be made in writing to the Associate Dean and contain a reasonable timeframe for the substitute to review and prepare for the oral portion. Only in extraordinary situations would a substitution be approved less than one month prior to the oral portion of the examination. No substitutions are permitted for the committee chair or the external member. If a substitution is denied, the oral portion must be cancelled and rescheduled when all committee members are present.

The oral portion of the examination will be evaluated by the entire supervisory committee following the policies of the university and the college and within the context of the individual student's program. The supervisory committee has the responsibility at this time of deciding whether the student is qualified to continue work toward the Ph.D. degree.

At the conclusion of the oral portion of the examination, the entire committee must agree that the student has passed, conditionally passed, or failed each of the four parts of the examination separately. If a conditional pass is assigned for any portion of the exam, the student must complete additional requirements, as assigned by the committee, to remove the "conditional" status. This work must be completed within a reasonable time period determined by the committee.

Any failure must be reported to the Graduate School, and the student must wait at least one semester for a retake if a retake is recommended by the student's committee and approved by the Graduate School. The following rules were approved by the Graduate Faculty on April 28, 2014 and pertain to outright fails, not just to the need to rework a question before approval.

1. Students cannot change the chair or member of their committee following the Qualifying Exam except by petition to the Graduate Committee, and there is no guarantee that the petition will be approved.
2. Only one member can be changed, not the entire committee.
3. They will receive a pass or fail for each question and the proposal. The vote must be unanimous on each question or it is considered a fail.
4. Students can retake the exam only one time.
5. The student will retake only the questions they failed. The questions will be different on the retake.

6. Questions will be taken under the same circumstances as the original testing – no outside materials will be allowed and the student will take the questions in the building.

Admission to Candidacy

When a student has successfully completed the qualifying examination/dissertation proposal and completed all requirements for admission to candidacy, the completed, approved, Admission to Candidacy form will be submitted via GIMS to the Graduate School by the Division of Graduate Studies.

On the day of the oral portion of the qualifying examination, the student must coordinate with the program assistant in charge of current student records to prepare the official Admission to Candidacy form for electronic approval by all committee members.

The date that the dissertation proposal was accepted by the supervisory committee must also appear on the Admission to Candidacy form. The Graduate School will not grant approval of a student's Admission to Candidacy form until the date that the qualifying examination was passed and the date the dissertation proposal was accepted both appear on the form. The later of the two dates will be the official date of "Admission to Candidacy." If a period greater than four months elapses between the date that the student passed the oral portion of the examination and committee approval of the dissertation topic, the student must notify the Associate Dean in writing indicating the reason for the delay.

Petitions

Any petition requiring approval for exceptions to the policies described above will be submitted in writing and must be approved in writing by the student's entire supervisory committee. The student will deliver the petition to the Associate Dean for Graduate Studies. The Associate Dean will review the petition and seek Graduate Committee approval or denial.
